

Little Doubt Students Led by Communists

By GEOFFREY GOULD

WASHINGTON (AP) — One of the most violent episodes in the controversial history of the House Committee on Un-American Activities has ended.

A beatnik-tinged tide of students and their followers has decamped from Congress after two days of hearings on a trip which 50 of their number made to Cuba this summer despite a State Department ban.

Time and again, outbursts of applause and shouts of "tyranny" caused scores of policemen to swoop down and wrestle them out of the Old House Office building.

Each time they landed on the sidewalk they cried out against "police brutality." There was no doubt the cops did not treat them gently.

The most serious outbreak came Friday.

Kathy Prensky was asked if she was a member of a Progressive Labor Student Club, which the committee called a Communist splinter group.

Her voice trembling with emotion, she said: "Yes, because I believe socialism is the way to end racism and under socialism we can have congressmen who are truly representative and who are not elected because Negroes are not allowed to vote."

A sharp outburst of applause greeted this rally.

Police began grabbing the loudest clappers and hustling them toward the door. "Leave them alone," cried others. "Tyranny!" someone shouted over and over.

"Down with HUAC! Down with HUAC!" cried a youth as he was marched to the door—HUAC referring to House Un-American Activities Committee.

Several girls squirmed out of the grasp of the police and slumped to the floor; they started screaming, outside as they were propelled down the stairs.

At least 13 persons were rushed out of the building and tossed down the front steps of the building, which is across Independence Avenue from the capitol.

Through it all the chairman, Rep. Edwin Willis, D-La., banged his gavel and called on police to remove the noisiest applauders.

He kept a rein on his temper and generally treated witnesses with politeness.

Willis also presided at the worst riot against the committee, as chairman of a subcommittee that held hearings on communism in San Francisco in 1960.

That demonstration got completely out of hand and police used firehoses to wash protesters down the steps of San Francisco's city hall. The committee backed a movie version of that riot, called "Operation Abolition," that portrayed the outbreak as being linked with Communists.

After Friday's uproar, Willis again said Communists inspired the trouble, using others as their fronts.

The avowed purpose of the hearings was to determine if new laws are needed to prevent Americans from traveling to Cuba. But much of the questioning of the committee counsel, Alfred Nittie, was aimed at linking the trip with the Progressive Labor Organization, which he said was founded by two Communists expelled from the party for deviationism.

The witnesses all tried to make these points: that there was no law against their going to Cuba, only a State Department regulation; that the right to travel is guaranteed to them under the Constitution; and that the committee is illegally prying into their private affairs and associations.

They called the committee's first witness on Thursday a "rat," a "creep" and a "liar." He was Barry Hoffman, 26, a Bostonian who notified the FBI and the Central Intelligence Agency he was going on the trip.

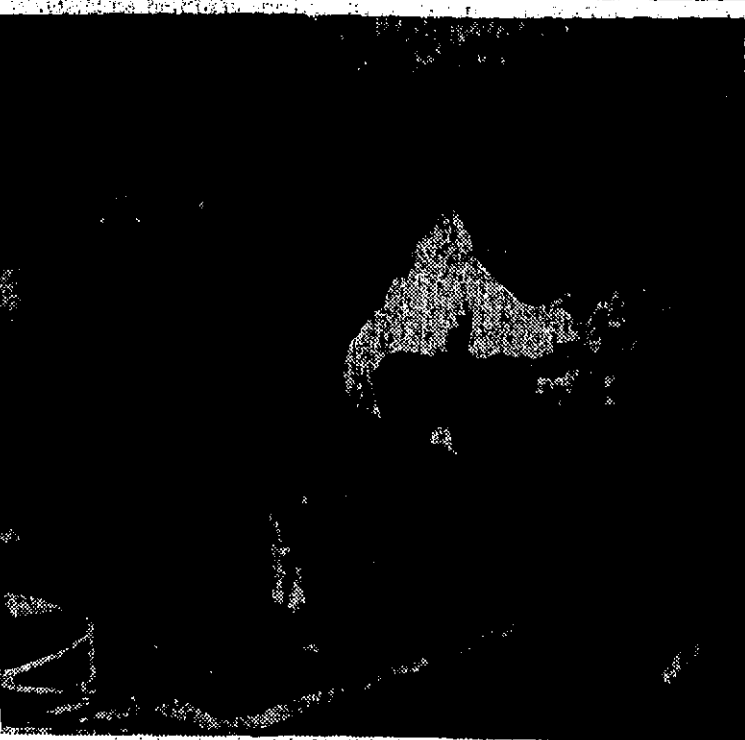

Hoffman said it was no ordinary American student group, that ordinary American students would not cheer a film of Mao Tse Tung or of an American helicopter being shot down in Viet Nam, as he said this group had done in Cuba.

Work Unpleasant

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Paul Hanshaw, who announced Wednesday his resignation as deputy secretary of state said Thursday he resigned because of unpleasant working conditions.

Weather

Clear to partly cloudy with little temperature change today and tonight.

"Soup-down," a tradition in the United States submarine service, makes a hit with teen-agers. Mugs of hot soup and nongreasy finger foods are easy for the students to prepare after school.

Pfeifers Is Sold to State Native

By JOHN R. STARR

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Pfeifers of Arkansas, after 98 years of growth in Arkansas, has been sold to a group headed by William Dillard of Tulsa for "several million dollars." It was announced Thursday.

The exact purchase price was not disclosed, but it was believed to have been the largest in the state since 1955 when the Boston Store's Jerome Ney of Fort Smith bought Daniels and Fisher at Denver.

Dillard, 49, a native of Mineral Springs, already controls the Mayer & Schmidt store at Tyler, Tex.; the Brown - Dunkin Department Store at Tulsa and the M & S Style Lark Shop at Tyler and his company is building an 80,000-square foot department store in Austin, Tex., as part of a $7.5 million expansion program.

Sam Strauss Sr., president of Pfeifers since 1935, said he would retire, but all other personnel at the stores at Little Rock and Hot Springs would continue in the organization. Sam Strauss Jr. will remain a vice president in the organization his father helped construct.

The Pfeifer complex includes a three-story main store, a multi-level home center, a sporting goods store and a toy store on Main Street in Little Rock. The Hot Springs store opened in 1948.

Joseph Pfeifer founded the organization in 1865 near the end of the Civil War when he established a general store on Little Rock's Main Street.

Dillard said the Pfeifers of Arkansas name would be retained and a store manager would be named within a few days.

The addition of Pfeifers and open of the Austin shopping center will boost retail sales of his group to $30 million, Dillard said.

He is a 1937 graduate of the University of Arkansas, where the oldest of his five sons, William Dillard II, is now a sophomore.

Dillard's business career began in 1938 when he opened a store in Nashville, hometown of his wife, the former Alexa Latimer, with capital of $8,000. He sold the store 10 years later to buy an interest in a Texarkana store which bears his name today.

He operated the Texarkana store and a branch opened in 1955 at Magnolia until 1960. In the meantime he acquired controlling interest in Mayer & Schmidt at Tyler and Brown-Dunkin at Tulsa.

Associates in the Arkansas purchase and "substantial stockholders" include Hamilton Moses, Paul Leird, W. H. Bramford and John Collins, all of Little Rock, Dillard said.

He said he was enthusiastic about prospects for Little Rock's growth because "the city came out ahead on nearly all comparisons made through our studies of similar size cities in many southern and southwestern states in recent years."

French Star Is Sentenced

NEW YORK (AP)—French television star Jacques Angelvin was sentenced today to three to six years on narcotics charges.

Angelvin was accused of bringing $3.5 million worth of heroin into the United States in January, 1962, by hiding it in compartments in his automobile. The car reached here aboard the liner United States.

The entertainer, who pleaded guilty May 22 to conspiring to violate New York's narcotics laws, was sentenced by State Supreme Court Justice Samuel E. Leibowitz.

Group Protests Dirksen's Stand

CHICAGO (AP) — Civil rights demonstrators confronted Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, R-Ill., at a hotel lobby meeting Thursday night when he came to town to address some ladies of the GOP.

While some 700 sign-carrying demonstrators waited across the street, 10 representatives met with the minority leader and protested his opposition to the pending civil rights bill.

He was read a letter to him stating reasons for the protest and urging him to reverse his stand and come out for the public accommodations section of the pending legislation.

Dirksen told the group, "I cannot accept the legislation as it stands because I am opposed to the public accommodations section." He said he felt that part of the bill would violate the right of businessmen to serve whomever they choose.

Kennedy said he did not think these ideas would improve the conference, but he added: "I think we do have the problem of moving very quickly from subject to subject, and, therefore, I am sure many of you feel that we are not going into any depth."

The fact that Kennedy has granted four television interviews in the past year reflects, in part, his unhappiness over the often disconnected way in which subjects pop up at formal news conferences.

Kennedy said Thursday he might try to combat quick changes of subject by permitting an individual newsmen to ask a series of news-conference questions on a single subject.

If this became his common practice, there would be a major change in the nature of the conference. Eventually sessions might amount to a series of televised interviews conducted by a limited number of newsmen.

Kennedy aides said the President is aware of this possibility and does not favor it because it would destroy the traditional free-for-all in which scores of reporters vie for a chance to ask questions and 20 or so succeed.

Since the present conference format was established in 1933 by President Franklin D. Roosevelt, there have been only a few major changes.

Thursday it appeared that Kennedy was about to shatter a tradition, the right of the senior wire service correspondent at the White House to end each conference by shouting, "Thank you, Mr. President."

Without waiting for such a shout, Kennedy said "Thank you" and walked from the conference room.

On another occasion, more than a year ago, Kennedy ignored the cry of "Thank you, Mr. President," and called for one more question.

It turned out to be a touchy inquiry about Democratic politics in New York, a subject Kennedy would have preferred to avoid.

No Plans Yet on Visit of President

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — President Kennedy's visit to Arkansas Oct. 3 will include an appearance at the Greers Ferry Dam dedication in the morning and an appearance at the Arkansas Livestock Exposition in Little Rock in the afternoon.

Outside of that, details of the visit were scarce. A spokesman for Army Engineers said today officials were working on the President's timetable but that nothing was definite.

Kennedy is expected to be at the dam site near Heber Springs at 10:30 a.m. and the dedication is set for 11 a.m.

Thomas D. Olmstead, chairman of the arrangements committee of the event for the Heber Springs Chamber of Commerce, said 25,000 to 30,000 people were expected for the dedication "unless the Little Rock visit kills it." He said the dedication planners hadn't counted on the President making another appearance in the state.

Kennedy announced Thursday that he also would visit the livestock show. The Arkansas congressional delegation had invited him to both events. He will get from one to the other by helicopter.

The White House said it would be a one-day trip. The President's plane will land at Little Rock Air Force Base.

JFK Rejects Change in News Conferences

By FRANK CORMIER

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — President Kennedy, conscious of the public relations value of his televised news conferences, has considered — and rejected — major changes in the conference format.

Kennedy, who flew here for the weekend after his Thursday news conference, has given considerable attention to proposed innovations.

Aides said today that all the suggestions have been discarded, at least for the present, but Kennedy still harbors the thought that the news conference could be handled in a way that would enable him to make a better presentation of his views.

At the Thursday conference Kennedy was asked about proposals that the sessions be limited to discussion of a single subject, or that questions be submitted in advance in writing.

Kennedy said he did not think these ideas would improve the conference, but he added: "I think we do have the problem of moving very quickly from subject to subject, and, therefore, I am sure many of you feel that we are not going into any depth."

Ban Written Into Labor Measure

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Commerce Committee wrote a ban on racial discrimination by labor unions into the administration's public accommodations bill today. The vote was 9 to 6.

The measure, a key part of President Kennedy's civil rights program, would prohibit racial discrimination by stores, restaurants and other businesses catering to the public.

The committee rejected, reportedly by a 9-3 vote, a substitute offered by Sen. Norris Cotton, R-N.H., that would have made the prohibition apply only to publicly owned facilities and establishments.

The committee, meeting in closed session, got down to voting on the controversial legislation for the first time since it concluded its public hearings Aug. 2.

Sen. Frank J. Lausche, D-Ohio, offered the proposal to require that membership in labor unions shall be open to anyone without regard to race, color, religion or national origin.

State to Build Girls Dormitory

JONESBORO, Ark. (AP) — Preliminary plans were announced today for construction of a $2.5 million girls dormitory at Arkansas State College in Jonesboro during the coming year.

Dr. Carl Reng, president of the school, said the facility would be the largest ever constructed on the A-State campus.

Reng said the completely air-conditioned dormitory would be seven or eight stories high and would house between 500 and 600 girls.

During the past year, new boys and girls dormitories were constructed at a cost of $1.5 million each.

Nearly $5 million worth of work now is in various stages of completion, including a $3 million student union and a $1 million library. The school also is renovating its journalism and education building and constructing a barn to replace the one destroyed by fire last year.

Rockefeller and Faubus Trade Jibes

WALNUT RIDGE, Ark. (AP)—Two men considered likely opponents in the 1964 governors race — Gov. Orval E. Faubus and Republican national committeeman Winthrop Rockefeller — spoke in Walnut Ridge Thursday and traded jibes without sighting one another.

Faubus, in praising his administration, said even Rockefeller and the Republican Party in Arkansas have benefited from state support to institutions and the state's construction program.

He pointed out that Rockefeller's Winrock Enterprises, Inc., is investing several million dollars in a construction project near Little Rock.

Rockefeller took note of the fact that Lawrence County needs rain (which it got Thursday).

Rockefeller said his path and Faubus' apparently had not crossed.

"I tried to find out what he had to say," Rockefeller said, "and was told only that he had a captive audience. He left before I got here, and the rains came after I got here."

Faubus reviewed his administration in great detail for 100 soil conservation district supervisors from 11 counties. Rockefeller recounted his first decade in Arkansas at a civic club meeting.

"Some people who must remain nameless, including one from Perry County, thought I was a threat to the state," Rockefeller said. "But thanks to the people of Arkansas, I have survived."

Rockefeller got off a shot at his critics within the state GOP, who recently restricted his duties to little more than correspondence because they were angry at his assistant, Everett A. Ham Jr.

"For some time I have been encouraging the philosophy of a two-party system of government," Rockefeller said, "and suddenly another group finds this sinister."

"My associate (Ham) has been attacked on many sides, but I firmly believe the state will be better and stronger with a two-party system."

Rockefeller has said he won't dismiss Ham.

On the Arkansas Industrial Development Commission, of which he is chairman, Rockefeller remarked: "It would be a great mistake if we allow politics to interfere with industrial progress, and I assure you we would have a new chairman if this happens."

Constitution Week, Sept. 17-24 Is Observed by U.S. Under Leadership of DAR

By MARY ANITA LASETER

United States citizenship is a glorious possession representing the dreams and struggles of men for centuries. Seldom do native Americans value this privilege as much as naturalized citizens, but both types will join in observing Citizenship Day next Tuesday, September 17, and Constitution Week September 17-24.

Citizenship Day commemorates the signing of the Constitution on September 17, 1787, and was first authorized by congress in 1952 in recognition of all citizens who have come of age (new voters) and all who have been naturalized during the year (new citizens).

In 1956 congress also authorized Constitution Week as a time for study and observance of the acts which resulted in the formation of the Constitution.

It was the Daughters of the American Revolution who were responsible for originating the idea of devoting an entire week to the observance of the Constitution. Through their efforts it has been set aside as a period for the thoughtful study and consideration of events that led to the framing of the Constitution.

Mrs. George Peck, Regent of the John Cain Chapter, DAR, said, "The underlying purpose of 'Citizenship Day' and 'Constitution Week' is to strengthen a nation dedicated to liberty and justice — a nation in which its citizens may live an abundant life, developing to the fullest their individual opportunities for success and rendering a corresponding service to their country."

In Hope the 11th grade history students of Mrs. Roy Allison have been writing essays on "What the Constitution Means to Me," and the winning essay will be printed in the "Hope Star" next week. It is appropriate, also, that the first meeting of the year for the local DAR Chapter was Wednesday, September 11, just prior to Constitution Week.

Every year 2½ million young native-born citizens reach voting age in our land. Will they take advantage of their privilege? Citizenship Day and Constitution Week honors these young people and the recently naturalized citizens who will begin full participation in the civic and political life of their communities, states, and nation.

But they don't include all the potential voters by any means. Most of them, like you and me are interested in the outcome of elections and want to help bring about the choice of people and policies we desire. While we don't always obtain our preference, we don't have any right to voice complaint unless we have expressed ourselves by voting.

The deadline for payment of taxes, a prerequisite to voting eligibility, is October 1, only two weeks from now. Whereas Constitution Week honors and pays special tribute to new voters and new citizens, it is a reminder for all citizens who want to be voters to pay your taxes and exercise the privilege of United States citizenship.

Martin said, however, he was informed by George L. Hinman that Rockefeller has every intention of running in the California primary next year. Hinman is the GOP national committeeman from New York and the Rockefeller family attorney.

Rockefeller to Enter in California

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The Los Angeles Times quoted Republican National Committeeman Joseph L. Martin Jr. Thursday as saying he fears a GOP "blood bath" should New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller filed a presidential delegation in California.

Political writer Carl Greenberg, who said he talked with Martin in a telephone call to San Francisco, said Martin advised Rockefeller forces of his beliefs through the governor's chief political spokesman.

Martin said, however, he was informed by George L. Hinman that Rockefeller has every intention of running in the California primary next year. Hinman is the GOP national committeeman from New York and the Rockefeller family attorney.

Treaty Vote by Next Weekend Is Predicted

By ERNEST B. VACCARO

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate debate on the limited nuclear test ban treaty may extend into a third week, Sen. Mike Mansfield said today. He called for "early and late" sessions to move it toward a vote.

The Senate Democratic leader told newsmen he would prefer to have the ratification vote by next weekend but "if need be we will continue early and late sessions into the third week, including Saturdays."

The first early session will be Monday after the Senate returns from a weekend off.

The Republican and Democratic leadership had tried to speed things along by asking the Senate for unanimous consent to move from debate on the treaty itself to the resolution of ratification.

But Sen. Strom Thurmond, D-S.C., who opposes the treaty, blocked the move by refusing his consent.

Now that the first week of debate is completed, treaty supporters have counted heads and believe they have a minimum of 80 votes, far more than the two-thirds necessary for ratification—67 if all 100 senators vote.

During the so-called great debate, proponents generally have praised the pact as a "first step" and a "ray of light." Opponents, while conceding they have little chance of defeating it, have called for reservations to the ratification.

Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., and Sen. Jack Miller, R-Iowa, contended today a Soviet follow-up on the treaty could influence the 1964 election one way or the other.

Appearing on a taped radio television program, Miller, who is on the doubtful list, said that if the Russians offer some second-step agreement toward world peace after the treaty's ratification, it might help re-elect President Kennedy.

On the other hand, he said, if the Russians violate the pact, they might influence the voters to elect a Republican.

Goldwater, regarded as one of the contenders for the GOP presidential nomination and an avowed opponent of the treaty, told Miller, "I couldn't agree with you opponent of the treaty, told Miller, 'I couldn't agree with you more.' But he declared the treaty 'is entirely in favor of Mr. Khrushchev—the club.'"

Friday's Senate debate was highlighted by speeches by two key members of the Senate Preparedness Subcommittee, one for and the other against the ratification of the treaty which would bar all nuclear tests except underground.

Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., the subcommittee chairman, asked its rejection as "a gigantic game of Russian roulette" and a possible "pact of national suicide." He said the Russians may leapfrog ahead of the United States in nuclear weapons under its terms.

He spoke after Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., a member of the subcommittee and head of the atomic weapons subcommittee, announcing support for the treaty, termed its risks serious but acceptable.

Priests Is Friend to Students

WASHINGTON (AP)—A ruddy-faced Roman Catholic priest, who went to Cuba as a newsman after years of service in Latin-American missions, is a friend and ally of students being questioned about their unauthorized visit to Fidel Castro's island.

The Rev. Felix McGowan served as moderator Thursday night at the students own meeting, billed as a reply to the House Committee on Un-American Activities sessions at which the students have faced critical interrogation.

The tone of the meeting was generally favorable to Castro's accomplishments. The Rev. McGowan contributed his own denunciation of what he called "police brutality" after Thursday's committee session and said there is religious freedom in Cuba.

"All the churches are open. Priests can preach. Anybody can go to church."

Father McGowan said in an interview afterward he has been suspended by his superiors in the Maryknoll Society of Missionary Priests from all priestly duties, but that he expects to be reinstated.

The suspension, he said, means that he may not help or administer the Sacraments, but does not mean he has been cut off from the church by excommunication.

At Ossining, N.Y., a spokesman for the Maryknoll Society said that Father McGowan was automatically suspended for "disobeying an order from his superiors" not to go to Cuba, but can later be reinstated.

At present, he is "operating strictly as an individual," and not as a representative of Maryknoll, the spokesman said.

Chicken War Small Part of Trouble

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—U.S. businessmen are bracing for rising barriers on their trade with Western Europe. A year ago they were hoping for lower obstacles to trade.

The chicken war is only a small part of the trouble ahead. It arises because the European Common Market raised the duty on American poultry. When the United States said it would retaliate, the Common Market backed down so slightly that Washington was unimpressed.

But American financial and business circles say that the very nature of European tariff policies is spelling problems for American exporters no matter how the chicken war turns out.

The six Common Market nations—France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, The Netherlands, Luxembourg—are forging a tariff rule for themselves and a common tariff schedule on all outside goods.

The same is true of the Outer Seven—Britain, Switzerland, Austria, Denmark, Norway, Sweden and Portugal.

This in itself will have each of the six or the seven a better chance at each other's markets than any one outside the rival trade blocs.

Until now the growing economy of Europe has absorbed a lot of American goods and materials regardless of tariffs and other barriers. Now the market is growing really competitive.

"From now on the adverse effects of the European trade blocs on our exports are likely to be much more important," economists of the Chase Manhattan Bank, New York, assert.

"The degree of discrimination against exports from outside the Common Market will increase rapidly in the period ahead. The common external tariff wall now appears to be considerably more protective than the old national tariffs."

In a study of European trade policies the bank economists predict that there will still be a sizable demand for American products. But they say that under the proposed rates in the common tariff the rise in U.S. exports to this important market may be slowed substantially.

In addition to tariffs the Common Market countries levy additional taxes on outside products. They are variously called turnover taxes, equalization taxes and surtaxes and range from 2 per cent to 25 per cent, imposed on the duty-added value of the imported goods.

Small Party for the Kennedys
NEWPORT, R.I. (AP)—President and Mrs. Kennedy had a small 10th wedding anniversary party Thursday night.

Kennedy aides said they expected a quiet stay in Newport, with no official visitors. The President plans to return to Washington Monday morning.

There were some hard things said, and a more of angry faces, but I was in my rights and Don Alfredo knew it if nobody else did. Emulating the phlegmatic Queen I made myself comfortable and twisted up a smoke.

Ybarra, red of face, was shouting and waving his arms for attention but the racket got more frantic, the yelled insults more vicious. They meant for me to know they wouldn't stand for that again.

There was going to be no more backing and filling. It was the kid's turn to yell and I could see he would, regardless. I watched him haul the stallion around, and fetched the mare about smartly.

I got me a fistful of mane. It was my turn to ask but I knew he'd go this time and, as I'd suspected, he had no intention of waiting for any question. While we were still 10 feet this side of the corral the little devil yelled "Go!" and hit the black with his reins.

I grabbed with my knees and felt the mare flatten like a cat sinking claws just before we took off. If I hadn't had that fistful of neck hair I'd have been dumped sure. We left that score like we'd been shot from a cannon.

Ybarra's black had been launched from a running start and the kid, out ahead, was likely feeling pretty perky. But at about 220, warming into her drive, the Cajun Queen barreled past as though that stud was standing still.

Lagrimas, by his looks, was a half-mile horse. He was taller than Queen by a good full hand and, once the kid got him rolling, he would probably pick up ground about as fast as we could leave it.

He was coming up fast—no one had to tell me. That crowd was yelling up a storm. I judged we'd come about 440. The killing part was still ahead.

Now the black was lapped on us. I could see his teeth, the red flare of his nostrils. From the corners of my eyes I watched the stretched black head creep forward, the kid crouched over his withers, still whaling.

I gave the mare her head.

Inch by inch we began to move away. I held my breath, but you could feel the power leaking out of her. The growl of the black's pounding hoofs drew nearer, the huh-huh-huh of his lunging breath.

About 100 yards off a blur of bug eyed faces above a colored wall of shirts and cotton pantaloons told me where the finish was. A hundred yards isn't much in the mouth, but from the back of a hide that is coming apart so much footage can look like forever.

I drove in the spurs.

The weight of her head came off my arm, the next three jumps put the black back a foot. Above the crech of the wind, the wild drumming of hoofs, I could hear the boy yelling. And then—don't ask me where! I saw the face of Shirl Dorris.

Sixty, 50, 40 yards. The busted-spring lurch was back. Lagrimas' nose was at my knee.

The kid began whaling at me with his rein ends and that way, still at it, we crossed the line with the mare's nose still out in front by six inches.

I should have been elated, but I wasn't—not with terrible silence all over. Yet it was no more bitter

Pentagon Has Resentment for Civilians

By FRED S. HODGMAN

WASHINGTON (AP)—Many military professionals smart under what they consider an excessive influence of civilian "whiz-kid" officials at the Pentagon. But these civilians, too, have met frustrations.

"The fact is, this is a one-man show," said one informed authority who rates himself neutral in the military-vs.-civilian feud.

"It's run by Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara—he makes up his own mind and makes the decisions."

Like some military leaders, the civilian operations analysts, theoreticians and experts are known to have chafed because McNamara would not go along with certain of their ideas.

But while rebuffs suffered by the services often come into the open, the thwarting of some of the pet proposals of the "whiz kids" generally is known only to the inner circle of defense leaders.

It is reliably reported, for example, that some of the civilian thinkers some time ago advanced the idea of withdrawing all nuclear battlefield weapons from Western Europe to reduce the hazard of accidental atomic exchange.

According to knowledgeable sources, the Joint Chiefs of Staff warned that such a move could mean the end of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. The proposal got no further.

Many of these men, mostly unknown to the general public carry Ph.D. degrees and other academic laurels. A number of them are relatively young—hence the term "whiz kids" is applied to them by critics and admirers alike.

Many officers feel strongly there is a place for the civilian "brain" who analyzes the defense problems scientifically and mathematically—but they believe such analysts should be servants, rather than masters, of the seasoned military professionals.

Their gripe is that the analysts who have achieved stature under McNamara's dabble in military strategy and weapons questions, they lack the experience and competence to handle.

There is no doubt that McNamara—a "facts and figures man"—gave the analysts greater prominence than they ever had enjoyed before in the defense setup.

But associates of the secretary insist he does not buy what the analysts sell without weighing their arguments against those of the military, and that the military positions do not get short shrift.

The art of operations analysts has become more sophisticated with the advent of improved computers and other advanced tools.

One major criticism voiced by military men is that all problems cannot be reduced to mathematical equations and computer treatment.

These uniformed critics—and there are some key civilians who share their views—contend the operations analysts are so bemused by what they think is rational and logical that they do not give due consideration to the possibility of illogical action by the Soviets.

Another criticism leveled at the civilian analysts is that they take slight account of human factors.

Who are the "whiz kids"? Here are the thumbnail sketches of a few of the most influential:

Dr. Alain C. Enthoven, 33, a native of Seattle; Rhodes scholar; holder of Ph.D. in economics from MIT; slim, handsome product of Rand Corp., a "think factory" where he worked on strategic air warfare studies; prime mover in fostering "spare the cities" policy which envisions nuclear exchanges aimed at military complexes and bases rather than populations.

Henry S. Rowen, 37, a Bostonian, MIT graduate, did graduate work at Oxford and another product of Rand. Tall, sandy-haired, studious-looking has had great impact in formulating limited and conventional war policies.

Dr. Harold Brown, 36, a nuclear physicist and director of the famed Lawrence Radiation Laboratory before becoming powerful director of defense research and engineering. Views weigh heavily in approval or disapproval of weapons projects. Dark, casual-dressing native of New York City and Columbia graduate where he won Ph.D.

non-Jews attend the school.

About 35 frightened children hid under beds and in closets.

An Israeli Foreign Ministry spokesman said "the Israel government is vigorously opposed to any manifestation of intolerance."

In Haifa, witnesses said the demonstrators broke into the American-European Beth El Messianic mission children's hostel and school shouting "tyrants" and "hangmen." Both Jews and

WHERE ANGELS TREAD

By HELEN WORDEN ERSKINE

Dear Helen: I am long on years and short on book learning but often get the urge to jot down experiences and thoughts. While convalescing at the home of my son-in-law and daughter this thought comes to me: You don't have to go to heaven to find an angel. The loving care I received at Barnes Veterans Hospital in Vancouver from doctors, nurses and orderlies, proved that there were angels right here on earth treading our streets, in this very house and in that wonderful hospital. And where angels are God cannot be far away.

My problem is to find someone to type my copy, put in the proper punctuation and place my words where they should be placed in the hope that they will find favor with a columnist like yourself, for to my thinking, there is no better way to whisper in the people's ear than through a good newspaper. Any suggestions? — Marshall Waggoner, Vancouver, Wash.

Dear Mr. Waggoner: Learn to punctuate and type yourself. Get how-go-do it textbooks on both subjects. I recommend "The Elements of Style" by William Strunk Jr. and E. B. White and "Personal Typing in 24 Hours" by Philip Pepe. Check with your local library and bookseller for copies.

Don't be too fussy about technique. I still type by the hunt and peck system and do very well for my needs. The main thing is to get your thoughts on paper.

The idea of angels being ever present is not only comforting but true, if we are receptive. They communicate with us through human beings, by ideas and in whatever is beautiful, noble or fine.

Dear Helen: My boy friend wants to have his cake and eat it too. He cries if I so much as mention dating another yet, when we discuss marriage, says he isn't ready to settle down and would like to see other girls too.

I've given up club work, girl friends and most of my outside activities for him. A girl whom he used to date sends him postcards, invites him to parties (so far he has declined) and acts generally as if she wanted to revive their old romance.

Should I fight to keep him? Tell him I don't want to date him any longer? Encourage him to date other girls? Or continue as we are, being thankful for the few times a week we meet? I'm basically good; don't smoke, drink, or flirt. My boy friend admires these qualities in a girl. I'm almost 20; he almost 19. —Mixed Up

Dear Mixed Up: Here are the answers to your questions in the order you've asked them: No. No. No. Your boy friend obviously doesn't need encouragement. Date him if you wish and have any free time after you've resumed all the activities you mistakenly gave up. He's not ready to settle down, and you shouldn't be either—at least, with him.

Dear Helen: A friend of mine lives with his grandparents because his mother and father parted. They work him to death on their farm without so much as a "thank you," yet his father and mother give them money for his support. Their older child gets everything she wants but the grandparents don't even give him the time of day. He is 15 and too young to face the situation himself; hence this plea for help.

They keep him more or less a prisoner, he's not allowed away from the farm at all, even on weekends. —Worried Friend

Dear Friend: It's never wise for an outsider to butt into a family situation unless no other recourse is available, which in this case I think there is.

Tell your young friend to write his grievances to his mother or father, or to both. The fact that his parents are separated is no reason why they can't interfere in his behalf.

Have you a problem? Perhaps Helen Worden Erskine can help you. Write her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Seeks Way to Reduce Killings
EL DORADO, Ark. (AP)—Circuit Judge Gus W. Jones of El Dorado has set the Union County Grand Jury the task of finding a way to reduce the frequency of Negro killings in the county.

"Something must be done about this," he declared Monday. "If there is any way on earth to stop or slow up this Negro killing in the county we've got to try to do it. Not only is it wrong to kill, it is putting a blight upon Union County."

Jones pointed out that while the county has five and a half white electors to each Negro, there are 10 Negro killings to each white killing.

The jury is expected to reveal its findings Friday.

Sinatra's Club Linked to Gangster

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP)—Frank Sinatra, the gangling singer who branched out as an actor, businessman and gambling impresario, has been threatened with loss of his Nevada gaming license. He is accused of allegedly allowing "one of America's crime overlords" to stay on the premises of the Cal-Neva gambling lodge.

Sinatra, in New York Wednesday night, was not available for comment.

The Nevada Gaming Control Board said Sinatra's guest at the showman's Lake Tahoe casino on the California-Nevada state line was Sam Giancana.

A five-point complaint submitted to the State Gaming Commission in Carson City Wednesday described Giancana, 54, of Oak Park, Ill., as "one of the 12 overlords of American crime." On Aug. 6 the Justice Department said Giancana was one of the rulers of the "Casa Nostra—Our Thing" crime syndicate.

Nevada keeps a "Black Book" that currently lists 11 persons, one of them Giancana, as persona non grata. Those listed are banned from any Nevada gaming establishment. Knowingly permitting one of them on the premises is grounds for license revocation, though it is not a criminal offense.

The gaming board's complaint charges Sinatra knowingly played host to Giancana at Cal-Neva, located about 20 miles from Carson City, between last July 17 and July 28. Specifically he is charged with allowing Giancana to stay in one of the chalets adjoining the casino.

The complaint also charges a Sinatra representative, Paul d'Amato with attempting to bribe two state gaming agents who were "performing their official duties of verifying the gross win at the gaming tables at Cal-Neva lodge." The complaint did not elaborate.

Further, Edward Olsen, gaming board chairman, said "Sinatra used vile, obscene, and indecent language in a tone menacing in the extreme, (constituting) a threat" when Olsen talked with Sinatra by telephone about Giancana on Aug. 31.

The board said Sinatra's partners at the Cal-Neva—Henry Sanicola and Sanford Waterman—were blameless in the housing of Giancana. However, all three would lose their licenses if the commission finds against Sinatra.

A spokesman for the board said Sanicola and Waterman probably would get another license if they applied.

Sinatra owns 50 per cent of Cal-Neva stock and has held his state gaming license for three seasons. He got his first Nevada gaming license in 1953 when he bought into the Sands Hotel in Las Vegas. He now owns nine per cent of Sands stock.

Sinatra has 15 days to file a notice of defense before the commission will act. He is entitled to a hearing by the five-man commission before his license could be revoked. If it is revoked, he can appeal to the Nevada courts.

The Cal-Neva closed last Saturday in what a lodge spokesman described as a regular seasonal closing.

7 Wells Finished
EL DORADO, Ark. (AP)—A survey shows that crews finished seven oil wells in Arkansas during the past week. They were capable of producing 223 barrels of oil a day. One gas well had a rating of an open flow of five million cubic feet of gas a day. There were six failures, three of them wildcats. Stakes were set during the week for four new wells. No wildcats were among them.

Endorses Rockefeller
MORRILLTON, Ark. (AP)—The Conway County Republican Committee has endorsed Winthrop Rockefeller's efforts to help the GOP in Arkansas. The national Republican Committee from Arkansas has been in the state's political limelight lately over what some party members termed differences in the upper echelon.

DESTRUCTION!

Maybe not! For since time began, all human progress has been marked by symbols... the golden calf, the dragon, an olive bough. The greatest was the XP symbol used by the Greeks to denote followers of Christ. Later the Christian Cross was used by Constantine when he said, "By this sign, thou shalt conquer." Now, a new symbol appears over the world... a scientific object of the atomic age. It signals the awesome need for understanding and world cooperation if we are to avoid total destruction and reap atomic benefits. May Christians influence world leaders to accept it, and may it be dedicated to peace and good will. Let's keep our symbols, but remember the Cross. Then we can say with Constantine, "By this sign, we shall conquer."

You In The Church
The Church In You — form a combination for good. Every man, woman and child needs the influence of the church. So, come let us go into the house of the Lord. Let us support her program of service to humanity, be a faithful worker, a daily bible reader and attend services regularly.
